Twister Rips Two Areas In Pickaway County

More Clashes Between U. S., Russia In UN Due

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., May 19 — Incessant clashes between the United States and Soviet Russia are foreshadowed today on three basic issues under discussion this week in the United Nations.

The controversial program is headed by the security council's continued debate tomorrow morning of the explosive Balkan border problem, which caused a personal feud last Friday between Soviet Delegate Andrei

Gromyko and U. S. deputy representative Herschel V. Johnson.

ON WEDNESDAY at 10:30 a. m., the equally conflicting viewpoints of Russia and America on atomic energy control will be in evidence when the working committee of the atomic energy commission resumes its meetings.

At 3 p. m. on that day, the sub-committee on conventional arms consisting of the big five delegates in the security council, are having another huddle in a final effort to draft a working plan for the full arms commission. This task also has run up repeatedly against conflicting viewpoints between Russia and the United States.

A fourth source of friction between the two major powers is in prospect also at today's initial gathering of the U. N. sub-committee on the gathering of information and freedom of the press.

The United States has submitted a five-point plan for the sub-committee's consideration on free information and the press. France, India and the Soviet bloc have contrary propositions.

Mrs. Margaret Gillen, seventh and eighth grade teacher at Corwin street school, Monday had been removed to her home in Wellston, where she is being treated for diphtheria.

Mrs. Gillen was ill last week and was unable to teach but her sickness was not diagnosed as diphtheria until last weekend, school officials said.

END OF PHONE STRIKE SEEN IN FEW DAYS

Settlement Of Final Major Phase Of Dispute Is Indicated In Talks

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Negotiations for 20,000 phone installation workers in 43 states continued into the small hours today with the prospect that a settlement of the final major phase of the six-week-old phone strike may be in the offing.

The union, the Association of Communication Equipment Workers, is maintaining picket lines in many communities where other affiliates of the National Federation of Telephone Workers have made settlements. A labor department conference between representatives of the ACEW and Western Electric company, manufacturing subsidiary of A T and T, recessed at 4 a. m. EST, after nine continuous hours, until this afternoon when the union will reply to a company offer. Union spokesmen said picket lines would continue.

EARLIER, a tentative agreement for settlement of another segment of the Western Electric strike was reached in a Sunday session on behalf of 22,000 workers at the company's Kearny, N. J., plant.

The proposal, agreed to by heads of the Western Electric employees association, is subject to ratification by rank-and-file union members. It calls for an average 11.5 hourly wage increase for all weekly and hourly rated employees.

If the workers ratify the agreement today, most of them could return to their jobs tomorrow.

THE COMPANY and the union, in a joint statement, indicated that nearly all could be back on the job by Wednesday, with a few remaining subject to call when work is available.

Ratification of the proposal is regarded as certain.

CLEVELAND, May 19 — Normal telephone service was restored in several Ohio cities today as Ohio Federation of Telephone workers entered Ohio Bell properties without being stopped by any picket lines.

An Ohio Bell spokesman said in Cleveland that the Association of Communications Equipment Workers, on strike against the Western Electric company, a supplier for the Bell telephone system, failed to halt the return of some federation workers.

RUSSIAN SCORES U. S. EXPANSION TO OBTAIN OIL

MOSCOW, May 19 — A Russian economist declared today that the United States should be satisfied with 35 per cent of the known world oil resources and "not look for oil in other peoples' countries."

Dr. Varga, writing in Pravda under the title "Oil in the Near East," sought to refute the "systematic sensational information" that American oil deposits soon will be exhausted.

He added that American activity in the Near and Middle East is connected with the desire of the United States to "become a Mediterranean power."

The Soviet economist said that the United States may "use British financial difficulties" in order to squeeze Britain out of its dominant position in the eastern Mediterranean.

REBELS REPULSED PARIS, May 19 — A French communiqué said today that troops in Madagascar inflicted heavy losses on a large rebel force near Gerard.

Thousands Of Dollars In Damage Caused By Wind, Hail, Rain Storm

Seventy-mile-an-hour winds ripped through sections of Pickaway county Saturday night and the twister caused damage to homes, farm buildings, hen-houses and fruit and other trees unofficially estimated at many thousands of dollars.

The wind preceded a deluge of rain and hail throughout the county, but the near-tornado's chief damage was confined to areas southeast of Circleville, along the Canal road and near Kinderhook.

The twister seemed to dip southeast of Circleville, then arose, and dipped again east of Ashville.

HAILSTONES the size of plums pelted Ashville itself during the violent rainstorm. Circleville escaped the devastating winds although the rainfall was heavy with some hail. Several windows were shattered in and around Ashville by the hailstones. Hail and rain damaged strawberries and gardens in other sections of the county.

Many roofs were blown off, chicken houses and other smaller farm buildings flung about, telephone poles leveled, and fodder shocks blown from fields into trees and on telephone wires, near Ashville, and in Walnut township, along the Canal road, and in the vicinity of Yellowbud and Kinderhook.

Between 50 and 75 telephones were put out of commission in Walnut township and an undetermined number of telephones were put out of use by the storm in the rural area near Kinderhook, and the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company reported Monday that all available workmen were toiling to restore service.

Crews of workmen dispatched to the wind-swept districts by the county engineering department worked Saturday night, all day Sunday, and were still on the job Monday, clearing fallen trees and other debris from the roads.

MORE THAN 20 trees were blown across the Canal road, a few trees were on roads also in Perry Township near New Holland, and in Walnut township it

COLUMBUS, O., May 19 — A Columbus resident told police today he shot and killed a 14-year-old youth because he failed to halt when caught lurking on the man's premises.

The dead boy was identified as Donald Dethy, Columbus. Joseph E. Watts said he fired one shotgun blast after the youth failed to heed four warnings to stop. The blast struck youth Dethy in the head.

3-CENT LETTER RATE CONTINUED BY COMMITTEE

House Group Favors Six Cent Charge For Missives By Air Mail

WASHINGTON, May 19 — A house committee voted today to continue first class mail rates at three cents an ounce and boost air mail and special delivery fees.

The action was taken by the house postoffice and civil service committee, as follows: 1. First class mail, which would revert to the pre-war two-cent rate on July 1, would be continued at three cents.

2. Postage rates for airmail letters would be increased from the present five cents per ounce to six cents.

3. Special delivery stamps would cost 15 cents instead of the current 13 cents.

The committee, however, voted to reduce the rate on airmail postage cards from five cents to four cents.

The house committee action is subject to approval by the full house and by the senate. The new rates would become effective 60 days after the President signs the legislation.

Committee members said the revised rates are designed to raise postal revenues by about 110 million dollars annually.

RUMORS STATE U. S. BUSINESS TO HELP SPAIN

MADRID, May 19 — Official denials will not down rumors that a group of American financiers are negotiating a 200 million dollar credit for Spanish industrialists.

These reports have been cropping up from time to time during the last two years. They have been the source of increased speculation since official announcement a short time ago that Great Britain had arranged a liberal payment agreement to facilitate trade with Spain.

Apparently intended to put an end to these reports, a bulletin issued by the ministry of industry and commerce stated:

"Certain rumors are circulating regarding an alleged loan from the United States. We deny these absolutely. No negotiations are being carried on by the Spanish government to secure a loan from the American government."

AUTO INDUSTRY HELD UP BY SHORTAGE OF STEEL

PITTSBURGH, May 19 — A spokesman for the steel industry said today a shortage of sheet steel continued to plague the automobile industry and the situation is not likely to be alleviated soon.

The spokesman said the shortage has been brought on by an unprecedented demand from all industries.

Although mills in the Pittsburgh-Youngstown area are operating at capacity, he said, immediate availability of sheet steel was held unlikely.

ENGAGEMENTS CANCELLED

WASHINGTON, May 19 — The White House today postponed or cancelled all outstanding social engagements because of the illness of President Truman's mother. Mrs. Truman remained at the White House today, but plans to leave tomorrow for Missouri.

BLAST KILLS 12

HAMBURG, May 19 — Twelve persons, including a member of the British occupation forces, were killed today in an explosion of a munitions dump in Germany. The disaster occurred at Lehrte, near Braunschweig, but the cause of the blast was not determined.

President's Mother Is Gravely Ill

GRANDVIEW, Mo., May 19 — President Truman's 94-year-old mother held her own in her battle for life today, but her condition remained grave.

The chief executive again took up his bedside vigil in the little yellow frame cottage shortly before 3:00 a. m.

An hour later, the President's personal physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, reported through Press Secretary Charles G. Ross:

"There is no material change in her condition since last night. 'She is tired.' 'She will remain in bed today.'"

TRUMAN URGES HEALTH PLAN

President Repeats Plea For National Health And Accident Insurance

WASHINGTON, May 19 — President Truman sent a message to congress today asking "immediate attention" to enactment of laws setting up national health and disability insurance programs.

Mr. Truman described that legislation as "crucial to our national welfare." He warned that until it is created "unnecessary misery and human suffering" will be perpetuated in the United States.

The health and disability insurance plan was a part of the long-range legislative budget submitted to congress by the President in November, 1945.

The chief executive paid tribute in his message today to the last — and Democratic-controlled — congress for having carried out a part of his program through expanding public services on maternal and child health.

MAY DENIES HE CONSPIRED TO DEFRAUD NATION

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Ex-Congressman May (D) Ky., declared from the witness stand today that he "never entered into a conspiracy with anybody to defraud my country."

The former chairman of the house military committee was testifying in his own defense at the May-Garrison war fraud conspiracy trial.

Asked by his lawyer, Warren Magee, whether $5,000 of Garrison money that was used to pay off some notes he owed was "part of any conspiracy," May answered:

"I never thought of such a thing. I never entered into a conspiracy with anybody to defraud my country... that transaction had no relation to the government in any way. It was a private business transaction."

KOREAN TALKS DELAYED BY BAD FLYING WEATHER

SEOUL, KOREA, May 19 — Unfavorable flying weather on the trans-Asiatic route was responsible today for a delay of possibly two days in the opening of renewed Russo-American negotiations on Korea.

Part of the Russian delegation, en route to Seoul by train from Pyongyang in the north Korea Soviet occupation zone, was held up before crossing the demarcation line in order to await the arrival of other Soviet delegates from Moscow.

The Moscow party was delayed by poor flying conditions today.

TREASURY HEAD GIVES CONGRESS VIEWS ON TAXES

Secretary Advocates Laws Modernizing Nation's Fund Raising

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder told congress today that "a period of tax reduction is approaching."

The cabinet officer urged modernization of the nation's tax structure but outside of his brief reference to tax cuts in the future failed to make any new pronouncement on the administration's stand that taxes should not be reduced this year.

Snyder made his views known to the house ways and means committee which is holding hearings on revision of the general tax laws.

He said: "In order to take full advantage of our opportunity to modernize the tax system we must make careful use of the available margins of surplus. The surplus must be divided judiciously between debt retirement and tax reduction."

SNYDER ASSERTED that tax reductions "should be allocated carefully among rate reductions and a large number of structural revisions."

The tax reduction bill now under consideration by congress provides generally for a 20 percent reduction in personal income levies. The house-approved measure was ready for senate consideration today but action was expected to be postponed until tomorrow.

Snyder recommended that the individual income tax brackets remain the "mainstay" of the federal revenue system.

He said that consideration ought to be given to increasing personal exemption in view of higher living costs.

THE SECRETARY revealed that a three-year study involving revision of estate and gift taxes is now in the final stages of preparation.

In discussing revision of the nation's tax structure, on which the house committee planned to introduce new legislation next January, Snyder said he believed a sound tax system should meet the following essential tests:

ITALY ASKS FOR MEMBERSHIP IN UNITED NATIONS

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., May 19 — Italy applied formally for membership in the United Nations today.

Alberto Tarchiani, Italian ambassador to the United States, presented the application at noon in the form of a letter to Secretary General Trygve Lie signed by Italian foreign minister Count Carlo Sforza. The letter was dated May 7.

Italy's application is the first of the major Axis powers to come before the United Nations. Hungary made the same request two weeks ago and the other Axis satellites — Finland, Bulgaria and Romania — are expected to follow suit shortly.

The Italian letter will be turned over to the security council for early consideration and the council will probably refer it to the membership committee.

Five non-Axis nations again up for consideration of membership are Albania, Transjordan, Outer Mongolia, Ireland and Portugal. They were rejected last year and will be passed on by the general assembly next September.

LUCILLE GLEASON DIES

HOLLYWOOD, May 19 — Funeral arrangements were being made today for Lucille Webster Gleason, veteran stage and screen actress and wife of actor Jimmy Gleason, who died Sunday.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

A Chicago doctor says that winning at cards can put a strain on the heart. Now the heavy loser can be told "this hurts us more than it does you."

And an understanding wife will say "try not to win dear — I'd rather see you go down six dollars than six feet."

The doc says a winner can't sleep, gets up exhausted and that's what does the damage. But every winner I ever knew always said "you oughta see the other guy."

I know one poker player who gets to sleep by counting queens jumping over a fence — but when he gets up to five queens he wakes up screaming "who owns these cards?"

Old Joe Louis, a consistent winner with a pair of dukes, says his next opponent should be chosen by elimination. I've already eliminated me.

But anyone who has survived the atom bomb might be interested in the offer.

should be equitable in its treatment of different groups. It should interfere as little as possible with incentives to work and to invest. It should help maintain the broad consumer markets that are essential for high level production and employment.

"Taxes should be as simple to administer and as easy to comply with as possible. While the tax system should be flexible and change with changing economic conditions, it should be possible to achieve this flexibility without frequent revisions of the basic tax structure."

PUBLIC HEARINGS which opened today were slated to continue for the remainder of the session with a view to drawing up for action next January new legislation overhauling the complicated tax structure.

Simultaneously, senate leaders anticipated that consideration of the revised house tax reduction bill probably would be postponed until tomorrow pending disposal of the science foundation bill.

Republican fiscal leaders, confident of ultimate senate approval, characterized Democratic attempts to delay consideration until June 10 as an effort to "save face" for the administration, which has announced its opposition to tax cuts this year. They pointed out that with revenue continuing to rise above treasury predictions, a delay would give the administration a chance later to about-face with the announcement that tax receipts had exceeded expectations and a tax cut is now feasible.

result of Saturday night's wind and rain, and company officials said service was normal and had not been seriously interrupted.

Near the Wayne township school a large tree was leveled by the winds and it fell across State Route 104.

PRINCIPAL property damage was east of Ashville. On the Pearl Ellis farm, now occupied by Stanley Stout and family, a brooder house was rolled over and over by the wind for a distance of 75 feet. All the chickens were smothered. The number was unreported. On this farm the roof was blown from the barn, and part of the dwelling roof was whisked away. An outbuilding was moved from its foundation. At the Roger Hedges farm most of the fruit trees in the orchard at the R. W. Burns cedars were either broken or uprooted by the near-tornado. The gable end of the dwelling was blown inward by the twister, and the roof was damaged.

At the Ira Fisher farm several large trees were uprooted and a large barn and cattle shed were destroyed. Several trees were uprooted at the Warner Hedges farm and one of the trees damaged the house in falling and siding was torn from the house when electric wires were ripped down.

Fully half of the pear trees in the orchard at the R. W. Burns farm were blown down and some damage was done to the front and the roof of the Oll Hutchinson blacksmith shop nearby. At the J. E. Cooley farm a cedar tree was blown against the dwelling, damaging the roof. The barn roof was damaged at the John Courtwright farm.

At the farm of Mrs. Martin Cromley the dwelling occupied by Kermit Massie and family suffered considerable damage when a tree was hurled against the house. A large weeping willow tree was uprooted in the lawn at the farm of Mrs. Sam Brinker. Some damage was caused to the roof at the home of Russell Hedges.

TWO ROADS leading to the Hedges Chapel church were temporarily blocked by fallen trees. Walnut township residents reported that at least 100 trees in that vicinity were uprooted by the twister.

Charles Brown said it was "the worst windstorm" he ever witnessed with the exception of a Kansas tornado back in 1888. A one-half-mile-wide path was ripped through the areas which bore the brunt of the winds' damage.

Seven or eight miles from Circleville, about a mile south of Kinderhook, on the John Carter farm, the twister picked up a roll of wire and hurled it 100 feet against the wall of a bedroom of the farmhouse. Several fruit trees were uprooted. Trees along the Yellowbud creek were also leveled. Several roofs in that area were reported badly damaged.

At the Fred Rector farm in the same district several trees were uprooted and a brooder house was unroofed. At the Gordon Rill residence, near Kinderhook, a chicken house containing 50 chickens was blown 100 feet and 12 of the chickens were killed.

Charles Carter, Circleville weather observer, said Saturday night's precipitation measured .48 of one inch. The high temperature Sunday was 77 degrees and the low was 62. The thermometer registered that the stage of the Scioto river was 5.58 feet at 8 a. m. Saturday, 11.02 feet at 8 a. m. Sunday, and 12.93 feet at 8 a. m. Monday.

SELF-PITYING GERMANS WILL NOT HELP SELVES

LONDON, May 19 — Thomas Mann said in London today the Germans feel so sorry for themselves that they are not willing to work for their own recovery.

The famous German-born author described the defeated nation as a land of "egotistical self-pitiers" who refuse to acknowledge that any other nation is suffering.

Mann, who now is an American citizen, observed that the Germans gave their entire resources, intelligence, efficiency, courage and thoroughness to "the barbaric Hitler regime."

He said they will find a cure only through moral and spiritual regeneration. He advocated large camps for the training of German teachers.

PEEPER CAUGHT

Nabbed as a window peeper at the rear of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company building at 9:45 p. m. Sunday, Eugene Davis, 19, millworker, South Clinton street, was in the city jail Monday. Police Chief William F. McCrady said it had not been determined just what formal charge will be filed against Davis who was arrested by Patrolmen John W. McGinnis and Turney Ross. The officers were traversing a nearby alley and noted Davis crouched at the window. Police said that recently several complaints of window-peeping have been received, mostly from homes in the east section of Circleville.

ASHVILLE SLUGS OUT 21-18 WIN IN SCO CONTEST

Jeffersonville Beaten After Taking Eight-Run Lead; Reds Still First

Ashville remained in first place in the South Central Ohio Baseball league Sunday by out-slugging Jeffersonville 21-18 in a game moved from Jeffersonville to Ashville because of wet grounds.

The Jeffersonville club presented a hard-hitting bunch of sluggers who treated Ashville pitchers with little respect. Ashville did plenty of slugging, too. Each team had 21 hits. The Reds played better ball in the field and proved they are not beaten until the last man is out.

Bill Black, starting Ashville pitcher, gave up nine hits and seven runs in 3 2-3 innings. Leonard Hornsby proved to be another pitcher Jeffersonville liked and he gave up eight hits and eight runs to go ahead 18 to 10. Gregg finished the game. He allowed four hits and three runs but was the victim of some poor support.

ASHVILLE came from behind to tie the score at 10 all in the top of the sixth. Jeffersonville in their half of the sixth scored eight runs to go ahead 18 to 10. The Reds picked up two runs in the seventh and two runs in the eighth.

Going to bat into the top half of the ninth inning needing four runs to get back in the ball game the Red's bats went to work. Tracy lead off with a double. C. Gulick fouled out to first base. Ankrum singled scoring Tracy. Ankrum stole second base. Noon doubled scoring Ankrum. J. Gregg was out pitcher to first. Harold Gulick singled scoring Noon. Harold Gulick stole second. Harper was safe on an error. Gulick going to third. Sawyer was given a free pass to first base to pitch to Russ Gregg. Harold Gulick stole home while Gregg was batting scoring the tying run. Gregg struck out.

In the Reds half of the 10th inning, Tracy singled to center and stole second. Carl Gulick popped to first base. Ankrum got an infield single Tracy going to third. Noon singled scoring Tracy and sending Ankrum to third. J. Gregg and Ankrum worked a squeeze play Ankrum scoring and Noon going to third. Harold Gulick was safe on an error. Noon scoring the final run of the game.

FEATURE of the game was Russ Gregg's relief pitching. This was his first chance on the hill this year and after settling down proved that he is still one of the top pitchers in the league.

Robert Tracy's big bat played an important part in this game getting one double and three singles in six times at bat. Ankrum got two doubles and two singles in seven times at bat. Wally Noon is still hitting .500 getting three for six.

Next Sunday the Reds will be the guests of Chillicothe. This promises to be the best game of the league. Chillicothe, the victim of Lancaster on the opening day, will be out to try and dump the Reds out of first place. The Reds will be in there doing their best and Chillicothe may have a hard time winning Sunday.

IN OTHER games Sunday Chillicothe won 6-3 from Grove City; Lancaster blanked Greenfield 3-0 and Jamestown and Washington C. H. were rained out.

"Chuck" Brown, big Chillicothe right-hander, held Grove City to six scattered hits and scored his second victory of the season. Mead got four runs in the first innings, but after that Graves, Grove City hurled, settled down and pitched scoreless ball with the exception of the fifth when Mead scored two runs on two hits and an error.

A crowd of 3,000 people watched Lancaster and Greenfield play a game in which there was only one error, by Lancaster, and a total of 10 hits. Daubemire fanned 12 and allowed four hits to win his second game.

WAYSIDE HOSPITALITY

WITH AMERICA on the go again, and vacationists about to take to the open road, tourist homes in greater numbers than ever before are springing up along the highways. These are private homes, with a few bedrooms opened to the public. The industry is viewed as a development of the automobile age. Yet it is as old as the United States itself.

When new roads were blazed through the wilderness, even before they were passable, pioneers put up log cabins along the route and took in the traveler who hitched his weary horse in the dooryard. After a bit the enterprising among such householders added a room or two as lean-to, made the table a little bigger, and his hard-working wife made a business of taking in strangers. They might be wagoners and stage drivers, gangs of Irish road builders or other settlers moving westward. These combination tavern-homes were the first tourist houses even though they had no electrically-illuminated signs out in front to announce inner spring mattresses or running hot water.

Like those old-time stop-overs, modern tourist "rests" dispense a personal hospitality that the commercial hotel does not achieve. America has always liked this informal roadside lodging. But tourist homes do need some sort of licensing or authoritative check-over to make sure that standards are upheld as they should be.

MOVING OUTDOORS

GRANDMA DID her best with sunbonnet and parasol to keep the sun from freckling or burning her lily-white skin. Her granddaughter tries just as hard to get the sun on her skin, to make it as brown as an Indian's. Architectural styles have changed correspondingly during these same years. People used to build big solid houses with little windows in them, and stayed inside them. Now houses are small, windows as big as possible. Occupants, whenever the weather permits, live outdoors.

This vogue of living-in-the-sun to a large extent started in California where so many new ideas begin. There houses are built so that they merge into the garden. With sliding non-reflecting glass panels for walls it is hard to tell where the indoors ends and the outdoors begins. Some Californians have placed fireplaces in porch walls so they can be warmed by the fire on cool nights as they sit in the garden. They have all sorts of contraptions like barbecues on wheels for outdoor eating.

People in other states are finding that their climates, too, will permit a lot of garden living. Modern insecticides that practically eliminate flies and mosquitoes have increased the zest for this pleasant tendency.

Qualified women voters outnumber men by 1,171,000, says Dr. Ruth Merrill, dean of women at the University of Rochester yet 25 per cent less women were elected to office last November than held office a year previously. Women should surely do as well in most offices as the men who fill them now.

Judging from the accident records, a considerable percentage of drivers, waiting at railroad crossings, do not seem to believe that when a train has passed on one track, another can possibly be coming in the other direction.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 19—In the senate lobby, the legislators laugh and say Mr. Truman could not have known what was in the portal-to-portal backpay ban, because no one does except Missouri's Republican Senator Donnell who wrote it and maybe a Philadelphia lawyer who helped him. Donnell chased commas and semicolons all over congress for six weeks or more before he succeeded in arranging them in the order he wanted, but even so he could not explain the ifs, ands, buts and howevers to the senate which actually passed the bill without understanding it.

Indeed, Mr. Truman appeared just as confused as the senate about what effect the legislation will have on the wage hour law and took his full ten days before signing the measure. The senators assume the message was written for him by the wage-hour administration. It took a broad view of the matter assuming the law would not upset its work or alter its standards.

As a matter of fact, the message merely gathered together the arguments used against the bill in the senate from the labor union side, and assumed officially these possibilities would not come to pass. It bore such a distinctly union flavor, the political trade interpreted it as a prelude to the threatened veto of the omnibus union reform bill. The unions were against this ban of portal-to-portal backpay suits, of course, but not energetically, and the president, by taking their arguments and advocating a higher minimum wage law, padded the cudgel. Senator Taft was personally somewhat surprised that Mr. Truman was not tougher about some aspects.

However, there was nothing the White House could do but sign the bill. The unions actually had filed suits for $6 billions of back pay for time spent in years past walking to machines and back again, or opening windows or putting on uniforms to go to work inside the company gate. To pay this sum out of current earnings would have required a tremendous price increase. Furthermore, the government would have lost hundreds of millions of dollars in tax refunds if industry had to furnish this back pay. So about 80 per cent of public opinion demanded the legislation.

Now was there anything new in Mr. Truman's advocacy of a 65 cent minimum wage law, instead of 40 cents? He was for this last year, and it passed the senate, failing in the house. Of course the current pay for the cheapest labor in most sections is now 65 cents or above, but enactment of federal legislation would prevent reduction if business goes sour. The house will probably not do anything about this at this session either.

Thus the portal-to-portal message was somewhat a political routine, and if Donnell has his commas and semicolons in the right places, will not be of much consequence.

More seriously the AFL is buying two-thirds page ads in local papers headed: "Industry - wide bargaining or chaos"? This is for effect on the conferees working on the union reform bill, particularly to keep them from accepting the house ban on industry-wide bargaining. The ad is written as an appeal to the public for support against the ban, which the ad says was directed by the selfish interests of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Some Republicans wish to water down the reform legislation for strategic political purposes, but the public interest of the industry-bargaining ban has solid grounds regardless of what NAM or the unions may or may not think. The anti-trust laws specifically prevent industry from dealing on a national basis as respects prices particularly, or in fact in any combination which might be considered restraint of trade. In simple public justice there is no reason why the unions should be freed from the anti-trust laws, and permitted to fix prices on a national industry-wide basis by their wage demands and constantly increasing demands for working privileges which increase costs to the consumer. Union combinations also fix prices and act in restraint of trade.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Causes Weight Gains

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOSE of us who weigh more than we should seldom like to admit that our stoutness is due to overeating. We search around for reasons and causes elsewhere, some believing it is only "natural" for them to be fat while others think they may have glandular trouble.

And it is true that certain gland disorders do lead to a gain in weight. Nevertheless such cases are few and far between. Most doctors, among them Dr. Edwin G. Langrock of New York, state that the only reason for obesity in the vast majority of cases is the eating of more food than is required. In any case, even where overweight is due to glandular disturbances, the treatment consists basically in eating less.

Height and Weight

Many height and weight tables have been formulated which show what the average person between 25 and 35 years of age should weigh. According to Dr. Langrock, weights above these levels are detrimental to health and lead to a shortened life span. No additional weight should be gained after 30 years of age.

In planning the diet so as to bring about a loss of weight or maintain the weight at the normal level, steps must be taken to be sure that enough of the various food parts especially protein are supplied for body growth.

Protein is furnished by such foods as meat, milk, eggs, cheese and whole-grain cereals. There should also be enough protein for the adult to maintain and repair the body tissues. In addition, vitamins and minerals should be supplied and enough starchy foods and sugars to supply energy and prevent acidosis or a lessening of the amount of alkali in the blood and tissues.

Losing Weight

In order to lose weight, the number of calories or heat value of the diet must be less than what an individual uses up in his daily activity. Thus a 1200 or 1500 calorie diet is often used. In planning the diet the physician will first determine the number of calories the patient needs. Then he will select foods which furnish vitamins, minerals and proteins and prescribe them in a quantity which will furnish the necessary number of calories. In some instances vitamin and mineral supplements may be utilized to make sure that a deficiency does not occur.

The overweight person can best reduce under the direction of the physician. I have outlined some suggested diets and instructions which may be helpful in following the physician's advice, and I shall be glad to send this information to those who write in enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, with six cents in stamps. Name will not be used.

TWO WAYS TO FOIL IT

THERE ARE two standard ways to obstruct a double squeeze, or at least try to. You may not be able to use either of them in some situations. In others, one is possible to attempt and the other not. The first is an endeavor to break communications between the declarer's two holdings through an early lead of his entry suit. The second is a matter of discarding, one defender retains his defense against the unestablished card or cards in the entry suit, and the other keeps the cards which top the single unestablished cards in two other suits.

Two declarers made the identical try for a double squeeze on this deal in a duplicate, each West having led the heart ♣. Able to count only 12 tricks, they built a nice format for the play. Two hearts, four spades, the diamond K, the club A and the club K left four tricks to go.

South retained his spade 9-7, diamond 10 and club 10, with the heart 9, diamond A-7 and club 8 in the dummy. To this stage at each table West clung to his heart J, diamond Q-8 and club Q while East retained the diamond J-9 and club J-6.

When South then led his next-to-last spade, West went wrong at one table. He discarded the club Q in order to protect the red suits, dummy shedding the club 8 and East of course tossing off his club 6. Then South's final spade produced the double squeeze. West, obliged to hold his heart J as protection against dummy's 9, discarded his diamond 8, whereupon declarer tossed off the dummy's heart. Now East was squeezed; if he threw off the club J, the 10 and the diamond A would get the last two tricks, so he discarded his diamond 9. Then the diamond A and 7 gave South the last two tricks.

At the other table, on the next to last spade, West discarded the diamond 8 and kept protection against the heart and club. East therefore was able to guard the diamonds, so the double squeeze was broken up and declarer had to be set one.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

BILL HAD not come home. Diane faced the empty apartment with an acute disappointment. She wanted to throw herself at Bill. "Bill, Bill, what do you think? Maybe, maybe we're on the way to propagate our kind!"

But you wouldn't say it flippantly, she reminded herself in the bedroom, beginning to undress. And you wouldn't say it until you were sure of it. Until a doctor told you. It would be Doctor Everts. The girls she knew who'd had babies had gone to him. They'd told—she held out a stocking to frown at it, remembering that what they had told was that it was simply loathsome, sitting and waiting in Doctor Everts' office with a dozen others who looked the way you hoped to heaven you didn't look! She went swiftly to the long mirror set in the closet door to stare with a new alarm at her half-stripped body, pressed her hands against it to feel its familiar slimness.

In bed she remembered that some women died at such times. You often read in the paper about the high mortality of women in childbirth. Her own mother—she threw out her arm and clutched Bill's pillow on the next bed. She was asleep when Bill came in. She did not see him until morning when he gently shook her awake. "It's late, Di. I'll start the coffee while you shower."

His eyes looked tired, his mouth too set. That damaging evidence of Staples—Diane tightened her arm around his neck. She longed to say: "It doesn't matter, darling. You won't think it matters when I tell you!"

She waited until Bill had closed the door behind him to go to the telephone. Her finger shook so that she had to dial twice to get her number. Her voice shook a little. "Doctor Everts' office? I'd like to make an appointment to see him—Not before two o'clock? I am Mrs. William Arden, Junior—No, I've never been in before."

She sat for a moment on the edge of the bed, one hand still on the telephone, the other limp and open at her side while the wonder of it beat through her. A child of Bill's flesh and of hers, of the intimacy of their love. To love, together, to think about!

Lois called her in the middle of the morning. "Coming out to the club today, Di? We might play some golf."

Diane recognized a slight persuasiveness in her tone which betrayed she was concerned over Vicky's tactlessness of the day before. But she only smiled. Yesterday's anger and dissatisfactions were swept away.

"Can't," she answered. "I've important things to do." Lois was encouraged to go on. "Has anyone told you what's happened? That's the uncle died yesterday. The one in California. His father called him that he's to fly out to the coast to represent the family. He doesn't know when he'll be back."

"Oh, a week won't make any difference—"

"Listen, Di, Danny and I were thinking last night—we were at Giuseppe's last night—that it'd be fun to go sort of risque to that showboat party. Like tan dancers—"

The merry-go-round. But Diane could laugh. She went back to the kitchen and to the task of cleaning the kitchen shelves which had been interrupted by Lois' call. Each time the clock chimed she paused in her task to count it, to hear her heart beat louder than the chime.

There were three other young women in Doctor Everts' office when she went in. They greeted her coming with a smile, looked her over, frankly curious, and Diane picked up a magazine quickly and pretended interest in the first page to which she opened it. This was what Joan Dexter had meant when she said it was sisters-under-the-skin, here. But she didn't intend to be drawn into any familiarity; hers was her own secret. She read one paragraph, another, with desperate intentness.

But in spite of it, she heard bits of their talk. "Say, I couldn't lift my head for two months, I was so sick to my stomach! Thank Heaven that's over." A comparison of hospitals. The Sheldon—had telephones by the bed. "You don't have to wait 'til a nurse gets around to thinking she has time to bring one in." The General let you have people in to see you any time and the food was wonderful!

Then one girl said, with a not too happy laugh: "This is my third. And my last, or I'll know why!"

Diane's fingers tightened on her magazine, as she suddenly remembered about it before their marriage, had agreed they wanted three children. And then Bill had said in his firm way: "But not even one, darling, until we've gotten ahead! When we can have a house and keep a servant."

Dismay struck in on her. Bill certainly wouldn't think he'd gotten far enough ahead, now! He'd be terribly disturbed, perhaps, by all it would cost. There'd be the hospital expense and a nurse—

"Mrs. Arden," signaled a uniformed woman from the door. Diane got to her feet, her knees shaking. "Maybe he'll say it isn't so," she prayed in her dismay.

But Doctor Everts, tall and gray-haired and benign, said that, considering everything she told him, there was no doubt of it. He patted her shoulder. "You mustn't feel any alarm, my dear. You appear to be in exceptionally splendid health. Go on doing all the things you have been doing. Keep happy."

When, smilingly, he closed the record book in which he had jotted down her answers to his questions, Diane felt as though he were shutting her within his leather covers. "Five hundred dollars for the delivery alone," Joan Dexter had said, proudly, as if it put added value on her baby.

She drove back to the Chatham Arms but, in front of it, she found herself reluctant to go in. She started her car again, drove on swiftly through the city streets, fighting to beat this new confusion in her. It was rotten to think about the money a baby cost! Bill must let her ask her father for it. "Keep happy." The old dodo had said it as though it were important. She'd tell Bill he'd said it. And worrying about money wasn't a happy state of mind. When she reached the city line where the street narrowed to a two-lane macadam road, she drove faster, tore off her hat to feel the wind whipping her hair. Keep happy, sang the spinning wheels. She would, she would!

Gradually an unfamiliarity in the countryside roused her to wondering where she was. The road was climbing into low hills, curving among them. There were stretches of pleasant shade where great trees stood close to it, a creek ran along beside it, through a shallow ravine. She slowed her speed, enjoying a little sense of adventuring. When she heard some boyish shouting she pulled to the side of the road, stopped, got out of the car and went to the edge of the ravine to look down into it.

In a pool of deeper water some boys were swimming. A quite little one, naked, stood at the edge of the pool, dirty toes gripping the shale, skinny arms stretched over his head, his ribs pushing under the great breath with which he was shouting: "Lookie, fellars, look-a-me!" His tousled hair was the color of wheat in the rain.

Smiling, Diane tiptoed back to the car. Not for worlds would she let any unexpected sound spoil that little boy's dive. When he was trying so hard to be brave!

She kept seeing him as she drove slowly on. He was suddenly, precious, a little boy she knew, a little boy she buttoned up day after day, and bathed and hugged and watched go off to play.

The road dipped down into a wider valley. Graceful willows and beeches, white-leaved in the sun, followed the course of the creek across it. On the other side of it, on higher ground, its barn against the opposite hillside, stood a house. Glimpsing it, Diane thought, excitedly: "That's where the little boy lives!"

Then she saw a "For Sale" sign nailed to a post that marked the long lane which led to the house.

She stared at it, inclined to believe that some magic had just pinned it there. She looked from it on to the house. An old house, needing both painting and propping, old sheds and barns, but she saw it the house she had dreamed of, that day with Page at the side of the pool.

She pulled the car half into the shallow ditch, sprang out of it, and started up the grass-grown lane. "A car can make this," he observed, aloud. She looked at her wrist watch. It had taken her only a half-hour to get out here. Bill wouldn't mind that. Not when it brought him here!

They'd have a garden, vegetables as well as flowers. She laughed in a delighted astonishment at herself, who never had given a thought to gardens of any sort, who never had spent one night in a country place like this.

The dance was planned in observance of the national "Operation Naval Reserve" scheduled by the United States Navy department from May 18 through May 25. John Heiskell is chairman of a committee for the "O N R" in Circleville. R. B. TOLEDO DRIVES TOWARD LEAD IN ASSOCIATION

By International News Service
A new challenger appeared today to plague the American Association's pace-setting Kansas City Blues.

The Toledo Mud Hens still were two games behind the Blues, but their feat of winning a double header yesterday carried them past both Louisville and Columbus into second place.

While the Hens slugged out 13-7 and 7-3 victories over Milwaukee, both the Colonels and the Red Birds were splitting twin bills.

Columbus edged Kansas City, 3 to 2, in a ten-inning nightcap after the league leaders had taken the opener, 6 to 4.

Louisville won its first game from St. Paul, 7 to 2, but dropped the second, 7 to 6, in two added stanzas.

Extra inning games were definitely in style yesterday. The Mud Hens' second victory also was achieved in an overtime contest.

Infielder Dick Kimble was the hero of that victory when he belted a grand slam homer in the extra eighth inning of a scheduled seven-round game.

Minneapolis unlimbered a homerun barrage to take two games from Indianapolis, 7 to 5 and 2 to 0. Babe Barna, Johnny McCarthy, Wes Westrum and Bobby Rhawn all belted round-trippers in the first game.

In the second, McCarthy's first inning homer with one on gave Ken Jungels his margin of victory. Jungels scattered seven hits in shutting out the Indians.

Only one Association game was scheduled today. St. Paul playing a night contest at Minneapolis.

INTERMEDIATE BOYS' CLUB NINE NAMED BY AMEY

At the regular meeting of the Circleville Boys' Club Saturday in Ted Lewis Park, Supervisor Ed Amey named the following to the Intermediate League team (boys 13 to 15 years of age): infielders: Tommy Phillips, Bob Brown, Cecil Sowers, Freddie Davis; outfielders: Jack Pontius, Gerald Thomas, Garry Grown, Gene Clifton; catcher: Bill Gillis; pitchers: "Buck" Teets and Paul Hill.

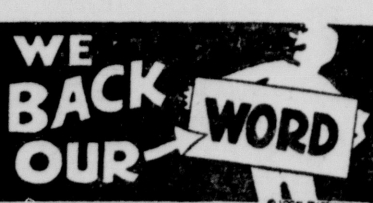

A Junior League team will be selected at a later date. The Circleville Boys' Club is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and offers instruction in various sports to school-age boys.

An all-day hike is planned for club members next Saturday.

SEVEN CARS QUALIFIED FOR INDIANAPOLIS RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 19—Seven cars were qualified today for the 31st 500-mile Memorial Day classic at Indianapolis speedway. Russell Snowberger, a Detroit blacksmith, became the seventh driver to beat the clocks yesterday when he averaged 121.351 miles an hour over the 10-mile route. He drove the same 8-cylinder Maseratti qualified by Mauri Rose in the 1941 race.

LOMBARDI JOINS GIANTS HOMER HITTING DRIVE

Braves Keep First Place By Splitting With Reds; Feller Gets Win

NEW YORK, May 19 — The name of still another long hitter was added today to the New York Giants' murderers' row, already the most devastating collection of fence busters in the National League.

Now joining the frightening array of power presented by the veterans Johnny Mize, Walker Cooper and Willy Marshall and the youngsters Bobby Thomson and Bill Rigney is Ernie Lombardi, veteran catcher.

SCHNOZZOLA got into the fray yesterday when he was most needed, right after the red-hot Giants had dropped the first game of a twin bill to Pittsburgh, 7 to 6. He whacked two three-run homers in the seven-inning nightcap, enabling the Giants to win 11 to 6 and remain only half a game behind Boston.

Frank Gustine of the Bucs won the opener single-handed with a homer and a double.

The Braves held on to first place by downing Cincinnati 3 to 1 after Ewell Blackwell of the Reds had enhanced his reputation as the circuit's best pitcher by winning a 2 to 1 mound duel from big Mort Cooper in the opener.

The Cubs suffered their fifth straight setback, 4 to 2, when they were tripped up by Brooklyn's four-run rally in the seventh inning as Johnny Schmitz lost control. The Dodgers tied Chicago for third place.

THE TAIL-END Cardinals lost twice. After the Phils battered the Cardinal hurlers in yesterday's opener for 16 hits and a 6 to 3 victory, Al Brazle blanked the Quakers for 11 innings, only to drop a 1 to 0 verdict in the 12th.

In the American League, while the leading Detroit and Boston clubs were rained out, Cleveland took third place away from New York by downing the Yankees 5 to 3. Robert William Andrew Feller of the Indians was credited with his fifth victory of the season but had to quit in the ninth when he lost control.

Chicago's White Sox tied the Yanks for fourth place by downing Washington twice with ninth-inning rallies, 4 to 2 and 3 to 2.

The Athletics drew away from the tail-end Browns by taking both games of a twin bill from the St. Louis club, 4 to 3 and 5 to 2.

own to rival the annual 500-mile classic at Indianapolis were dispelled today with the announcement that the drivers have decided to enter a sanctioned race at Milwaukee June 8.

ONLY ONE GAME ON NIGHT LOOP BILL TONIGHT

More changes had been made Monday in the Night Softball league schedule.

President Ed Amey announced Williamsport had dropped out of the league, necessitating rearrangement of the entire schedule.

First change will be noted Monday night. Instead of a doubleheader there will be only one game. Drake's Produce and Tarlton are scheduled to play at 8 p. m.

Tuesday's schedule has not been settled and will be announced later. The unexpected Williamsport withdrawal at the last moment made it impossible to contact other teams and set up a schedule for Tuesday.

The modern milking machine is indispensable to today's successful dairyman. However, no single type of milking machine fits the needs of all dairymen equally well. Barn arrangements and facilities vary . . . so do herd sizes and operating methods.

For some dairymen pipe line installations are most efficient. They will select either CO-OP UNIVERSAL STANDARD CALF-NOSE MILKERS (single or double units) or CO-OP UNIVERSAL SHORT TUBE MILKERS. Others find the use of portables better adapted to their needs. CO-OP UNIVERSAL PORTABLE MILKERS are available in both floor type and track type, in single units or double units, with milker pails or for milk cans, operated by electric motor or gasoline engine.

ONE THING all dairymen have in common. They need milking machines scientifically up to date, durable in construction, dependable in operation.

These are characteristic of every CO-OP UNIVERSAL milker, whatever the type or model.

THREE KILLED IN NEW CHICAGO CRIME OUTBREAK

CHICAGO, May 19—New terror gripped Chicago's notorious Fillmore district today after two prominent citizens and an ex-convict were killed in an attempted holdup.

The dead were identified as: Albert Feinberg, 38, the host and head of the West Chicago Feather company; Ben Eisenstein, 39, personal bailiff for municipal court judge Oscar S. Caplan, and George Stanislawski, 24, named by witnesses as one of the bandits.

Another guest, Lionel Takiff, 34, was struck on the head with a hammer by one of the robbers. The gun fight climaxed a series of crimes which has terrorized the district since last Jan. 1. A mother of five was murdered March 6 near her home, and 35 women have been assaulted or robbed.

SNYDER SEES 'TAX REDUCTION PERIOD'

Twister Rips Two Areas In Pickaway County

NAVY VETERAN Joseph Teller (top, right), 26, received severe facial injuries when he plugged an electric clock he had received in the mail into a wall socket in his Chicago apartment. The clock was loaded with an explosive which knocked out a wall and tore the kitchen door off its hinges. Detectives (top, left) look through the rubble for clues. At bottom, Teller's sister, Mrs. Mary Moller, comforts their mother. The father, Anton Teller, who was ill in a nearby bedroom, died shortly after the explosion rocked the house.

More Clashes Between U. S., Russia In UN Due

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., May 19 — Incassant clashes between the United States and Soviet Russia are foreshadowed today on three basic issues under discussion this week in the United Nations.

The controversial program is headed by the security council's continued debate tomorrow morning of the explosive Balkan border problem, which caused a personal feud last Friday between Soviet Delegate Andrei

Gromyko and U. S. deputy representative Herschel V. Johnson.

ON WEDNESDAY at 10:30 a. m., the equally conflicting viewpoints of Russia and America on atomic energy control will be in evidence when the working committee of the atomic energy commission resumes its meetings.

At 3 p. m. on that day, the sub-committee on conventional arms consisting of the big five delegates in the security council, are having another huddle in a final effort to draft a working plan for the full arms commission. This task also has run up repeatedly against conflicting viewpoints between Russia and the United States.

A fourth source of friction between the two major powers is in prospect also at today's initial gathering of the U. N. sub-committee on the gathering of information and freedom of the press.

The United States has submitted a five-point plan for the sub-committee's consideration on free information and the press. France, India and the Soviet bloc have contrary propositions.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kierman

A Chicago doctor says that winning at cards can put a strain on the heart. Now the heavy loser can be told "this hurts us more than it does you."

And an understanding wife will say "try not to win dear—I'd rather see you go down six dollars than six feet."

The doc says a winner can't sleep, gets up exhausted and that's what does the damage. But every winner I ever knew always said "you oughta see the other guy."

I know one poker player who gets to sleep by counting queens jumping over a fence—but when he gets up to five queens he wakes up screaming "who owns these cards?"

Old Joe Louis, a consistent winner with a pair of dukes, says his next opponent should be chosen by elimination. I've already eliminated me.

But anyone who has survived the atom bomb might be interested in the offer.

CORWIN TEACHER ILL AT HOME WITH DIPHTHERIA

Mrs. Margaret Gillen, seventh and eighth grade teacher at Corwin street school, Monday had been removed to her home in Wellston, where she is being treated for diphtheria.

Mrs. Gillen was ill last week and was unable to teach but her sickness was not diagnosed as diphtheria until last weekend, school officials said.

END OF PHONE STRIKE SEEN IN FEW DAYS

Settlement Of Final Major Phase Of Dispute Is Indicated In Talks

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Negotiations for 20,000 phone installation workers in 43 states continued into the small hours today with the prospect that a settlement of the final major phase of the six-week-old phone strike may be in the offing.

The union, the Association of Communication Equipment Workers, is maintaining picket lines in many communities where other affiliates of the National Federation of Telephone Workers have made settlements.

A labor department conference between representatives of the ACEW and Western Electric company, manufacturing subsidiary of A T and T, recessed at 4 a. m. EST, after nine continuous hours, until this afternoon when the union will reply to a company offer. Union spokesmen said picket lines would continue.

EARLIER, a tentative agreement for settlement of another segment of the Western Electric strike was reached in a Sunday session on behalf of 22,000 workers at the company's Kearny, N. J., plant.

The proposal, agreed to by heads of the Western Electric employees association, is subject to ratification by rank-and-file union members. It calls for an average 11.5 hourly wage increase for all weekly and hourly rated employees.

If the workers ratify the agreement today, most of them could return to their jobs tomorrow.

THE COMPANY and the union, in a joint statement, indicated that nearly all could be back on the job by Wednesday, with a few remaining subject to call when work is available.

Ratification of the proposal is regarded as certain.

CLEVELAND, May 19—Normal telephone service was restored in several Ohio cities today as Ohio Federation of Telephone workers entered Ohio Bell properties without being stopped by any picket lines.

An Ohio Bell spokesman said in Cleveland that the Association of Communications Equipment Workers, on strike against the Western Electric company, a supplier for the Bell telephone system, failed to halt the return of some federation workers.

RUSSIAN SCORES U. S. EXPANSION TO OBTAIN OIL

MOSCOW, May 19—A Russian economist declared today that the United States should be satisfied with 35 per cent of the known world oil resources and "not look for oil in other peoples' countries."

Dr. Varga, writing in Pravda under the title "Oil in the Near East," sought to refute the "systematic sensational information" that American oil deposits soon will be exhausted.

He added that American activity in the Near and Middle East is connected with the desire of the United States to "become a Mediterranean power."

The Soviet economist said that the United States may "use British financial difficulties" in order to squeeze Britain out of its dominant position in the eastern Mediterranean.

Thousands Of Dollars In Damage Caused By Wind, Hail, Rain Storm

Seventy-mile-an-hour winds ripped through sections of Pickaway county Saturday night and the twister caused damage to homes, farm buildings, hen-houses and fruit and other trees unofficially estimated at many thousands of dollars.

The wind preceded a deluge of rain and hail throughout the county, but the near-tornado's chief damage was confined to areas and Yellowbud, and the territory a short distance east of Ashville.

The twister seemed to dip southeast of Circleville, then arose, and dipped again east of Ashville.

HAILSTONES the size of plums pelted Ashville itself during the violent rainstorm. Circleville escaped the devastating winds although the rainfall was heavy with some hail. Several windows were shattered in and around Ashville by the hailstones. Hail and rain damaged strawberries and gardens in other sections of the county.

Many roofs were blown off, chicken houses and other smaller farm buildings flung about, telephone poles leveled, and fodder shocks blown from fields into trees and on telephone wires, near Ashville, and in Walnut township, along the Canal road, and in the vicinity of Yellowbud and Kinderhook.

Between 50 and 75 telephones were put out of commission in Walnut township and an undetermined number of telephones were put out of use by the storm in the rural area near Kinderhook, and the Ohio Consolidated Telephone company reported Monday that all available workmen were toiling to restore service.

Crews of workmen dispatched to the wind-swept districts by the county engineering department worked Saturday night, all day Sunday, and were still on the job Monday, clearing fallen trees and other debris from the roads.

MORE THAN 20 trees were blown across the Canal road, a few trees were on roads also in Perry Township near New Holland, and in Walnut township it

3-CENT LETTER RATE CONTINUED BY COMMITTEE

House Group Favors Six Cent Charge For Missives By Air Mail

WASHINGTON, May 19 — A house committee voted today to continue first class mail rates at three cents an ounce and boost air mail and special delivery fees.

The action was taken by the house postoffice and civil service committee, as follows:

1. First class mail, which would revert to the pre-war two-cent rate on July 1, would be continued at three cents.
2. Postage rates for airmail letters would be increased from the present five cents per ounce to six cents.
3. Special delivery stamps would cost 15 cents instead of the current 13 cents.

The committee, however, voted to reduce the rate on airmail postage cards from five cents to four cents.

The house committee action is subject to approval by the full house and by the senate. The new rates would become effective 60 days after the President signs the legislation.

Committee members said the revised rates are designed to raise postal revenues by about 110 million dollars annually.

RUMORS STATE U. S. BUSINESS TO HELP SPAIN

MADRID, May 19—Official denials will not down rumors that a group of American financiers are negotiating a 200 million dollar credit for Spanish industrialists.

These reports have been cropping up from time to time during the last two years. They have been the source of increased speculation since official announcement a short time ago that Great Britain had arranged a liberal payment agreement to facilitate trade with Spain.

Apparently intended to put an end to these reports, a bulletin issued by the ministry of industry and commerce stated:

"Certain rumors are circulating regarding an alleged loan from the United States. We deny these absolutely. No negotiations are being carried on by the Spanish government to secure a loan from the American government."

AUTO INDUSTRY HELD UP BY SHORTAGE OF STEEL

PITTSBURGH, May 19 — A spokesman for the steel industry said today a shortage of sheet steel continued to plague the automobile industry and the situation is not likely to be alleviated soon.

The spokesman said the shortage has been brought on by an unprecedented demand from all industries.

Although mills in the Pittsburgh-Youngstown area are operating at capacity, he said, immediate availability of sheet steel was held unlikely.

ENGAGEMENTS CANCELLED

WASHINGTON, May 19—The White House today postponed or cancelled all outstanding social engagements because of the illness of President Truman's mother. Mrs. Truman remained at the White House today, but plans to leave tomorrow for Missouri.

BLAST KILLS 12

HAMBURG, May 19 — Twelve persons, including a member of the British occupation forces, were killed today in an explosion of a munitions dump in Germany. The disaster occurred at Lehrte, near Braunschweig, but the cause of the blast was not determined.

President's Mother Is Gravely Ill

GRANDVIEW, Mo., May 19—President Truman's 94-year-old mother held her own in her battle for life today, but her condition remained grave.

The chief executive again took up his bedside vigil in the little yellow frame cottage shortly before 9:00 a. m.

An hour later, the President's personal physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, reported through Press Secretary Charles G. Ross:

"There is no material change in her condition since last night. 'She is tired. . . . She will remain in bed today.'"

TRUMAN URGES HEALTH PLAN

President Repeats Plea For National Health And Accident Insurance

WASHINGTON, May 19—President Truman sent a message to congress today asking "immediate attention" to enactment of laws setting up national health and disability insurance programs.

Mr. Truman described that legislation as "crucial to our national welfare." He warned that until it is created "unnecessary misery and human suffering" will be perpetuated in the United States.

The health and disability insurance plan was a part of the long-range legislative budget submitted to congress by the President in November, 1945.

The chief executive paid tribute in his message today to the last — and Democratic-controlled — congress for having carried out a part of his program through expanding public services on maternal and child health.

MAY DENIES HE CONSPIRED TO DEFRAUD NATION

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Ex-Congressman May (D) Ky., declared from the witness stand today that he "never entered into a conspiracy with anybody to defraud my country."

The former chairman of the house military committee was testifying in his own defense at the May-Garrison war fraud conspiracy trial.

Asked by his lawyer, Warren Magee, whether $5,000 of Garrison money that was used to pay off some notes he owed was "part of any conspiracy," May answered:

"I never thought of such a thing. I never entered into a conspiracy with anybody to defraud my country. . . . that transaction had no relation to the government in any way. It was a private business transaction."

KOREAN TALKS DELAYED BY BAD FLYING WEATHER

SEOUL, KOREA, May 19 — Unfavorable flying weather on the trans-Asiatic route was responsible today for a delay of possibly two days in the opening of renewed Russo-American negotiations on Korea.

Part of the Russian delegation, en route to Seoul by train from Pyongyang in the north Korea Soviet occupation zone, was held up before crossing the demarcation line in order to await the arrival of other Soviet delegates from Moscow.

The Moscow party was delayed by poor flying conditions day.

TREASURY HEAD GIVES CONGRESS VIEWS ON TAXES

Secretary Advocates Laws Modernizing Nation's Fund Raising

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder told congress today that "a period of tax reduction is approaching."

The cabinet officer urged modernization of the nation's tax structure but outside of his brief reference to tax cuts in the future failed to make any new pronouncement on the administration's stand that taxes should not be reduced this year.

Snyder made his views known to the house ways and means committee which is holding hearings in her condition since last night. "She is tired. . . . She will remain in bed today."

In order to take full advantage of our opportunity to modernize the tax system we must make careful use of the available margins of surplus. The surplus must be divided judiciously between debt retirement and tax reduction."

SNYDER ASSERTED that tax reductions "should be allocated carefully among rate reductions and a large number of structural revisions."

The tax reduction bill now under consideration by congress provides generally for a 20 percent reduction in personal income levies. The house-approved measure was ready for senate consideration today but action was expected to be postponed until tomorrow.

Snyder recommended that the individual income tax brackets remain the "mainstay" of the federal revenue system.

He said that consideration ought to be given to increasing personal exemption in view of higher living costs.

THE SECRETARY revealed that a three-year study involving revision of estate and gift taxes is now in the final stages of preparation.

In discussing revision of the nation's tax structure, on which the house committee planned to introduce new legislation next January, Snyder said he believed a sound tax system should meet the following essential tests:

ITALY ASKS FOR MEMBERSHIP IN UNITED NATIONS

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., May 19 — Italy applied formally for membership in the United Nations today.

Alberto Tarchiani, Italian ambassador to the United States, presented the application at noon in the form of a letter to Secretary General Trygve Lie signed by Italian foreign minister Count Carlo Sforza. The letter was dated May 7.

Italy's application is the first of the major Axis powers to come before the United Nations. Hungary made the same request two weeks ago and the other Axis satellites — Finland, Bulgaria and Romania — are expected to follow suit shortly.

The Italian letter will be turned over to the security council for early consideration and the council will probably refer it to the membership committee.

Five non-Axis nations again up for consideration of membership are Albania, Transjordan, Outer Mongolia, Ireland and Portugal. They were rejected last year and will be passed on by the general assembly next September.

should be equitable in its treatment of different groups. It should interfere as little as possible with incentives to work and to invest. It should help maintain the broad consumer markets that are essential for high level production and employment.

"Taxes should be as simple to administer and as easy to comply with as possible. While the tax system should be flexible and change with changing economic conditions, it should be possible to achieve this flexibility without frequent revisions of the basic tax structure."

PUBLIC HEARINGS which opened today were slated to continue for the remainder of the session with a view to drawing up for action next January new legislation overhauling the complicated tax structure.

Simultaneously, senate leaders anticipated that consideration of the revised house tax reduction bill probably would be postponed until tomorrow pending disposal of the science foundation bill.

Republican fiscal leaders, confident of ultimate senate approval, characterized Democratic attempts to delay consideration until June 10 as an effort to "save face" for the administration, which has announced its opposition to tax cuts this year. They pointed out that with revenue continuing to rise above treasury predictions, a delay would give the administration a chance later to about-face with the announcement that tax receipts had exceeded expectations and a tax cut is now feasible.

TRAIN DERAILED

LONDON, O., May 19—Fifteen coal-laden cars of a Pennsylvania railroad freight train were derailed early today four miles northeast of London. No one was reported injured.

Thousands Of Dollars In Damage Caused By Wind, Hail, Rain Storm

result of Saturday night's wind and rain, and company officials said service was normal and had not been seriously interrupted.

Near the Wayne township school a large tree was leveled by the winds and it fell across State Route 104.

PRINCIPAL property damage was east of Ashville. On the Pearl Ellis farm, now occupied by Stanley Stout and family, a brooder house was rolled over and over by the wind for a distance of 75 feet. All the chickens were smothered. The number was unreported. On this farm the roof was blown from the barn, and part of the dwelling roof was whisked away. An outbuilding was moved from its foundation. At the Roger Hedges farm most of the fruit trees in the orchard at the R. W. Burns cedars were either broken or uprooted by the near-tornado. The gable end of the dwelling was blown inward by the twister, and the roof was damaged.

At the Ira Fisher farm several large trees were uprooted and a large barn and cattle shed were destroyed. Several trees were uprooted at the Warner Hedges farm and one of the trees damaged the house in falling, and siding was torn from the house when electric wires were ripped down.

Fully half of the pear trees in the orchard at the R. W. Burns farm were blown down and some damage was done to the front and the roof of the Oil Hutchinson blacksmith shop nearby. At the J. E. Cooley farm a cedar tree was blown against the dwelling, damaging the roof. The barn roof was damaged at the John Courtwright farm.

At the farm of Mrs. Martin Cromley the dwelling occupied by Kermit Massie and family suffered considerable damage when a tree was hurled against the house. A large weeping willow tree was uprooted in the lawn at the farm of Mrs. Sam Brinker. Some damage was caused to the roof at the home of Russell Hedges.

TWO ROADS leading to the Hedges Chapel church were temporarily blocked by fallen trees. Walnut township residents reported that at least 100 trees in that vicinity were uprooted by the twister.

Charles Brown said it was "the worst windstorm" he ever witnessed with the exception of a Kansas tornado back in 1888. A one-half-mile-wide path was ripped through the areas which bore the brunt of the winds' damage.

Seven or eight miles from Circleville, about a mile south of Kinderhook, on the John Carter farm, the twister picked up a roll of wire and hurled it 100 feet against the wall of a bedroom of the farmhouse. Several fruit trees were uprooted. Trees along the Yellowbud creek were also leveled. Several roofs in

Jeffersonville Beaten After Taking Eight-Run Lead; Reds Still First

Ashville remained in first place in the South Central Ohio Baseball league Sunday by out-slugging Jeffersonville 21-18 in a game moved from Jeffersonville to Ashville because of wet grounds.

The Jeffersonville club presented a hard-hitting bunch of sluggers who treated Ashville pitchers with little respect. Ashville did plenty of slugging, too. Each team had 21 hits. The Reds played better ball in the field and proved they are not beaten until the last man is out.

Bill Black, starting Ashville pitcher, gave up nine hits and seven runs in 3 2-3 innings. Leonard Hornsby proved to be another pitcher Jeffersonville liked and he gave up eight hits and eight runs to go ahead 18 to 10. Gregg finished the game. He allowed four hits and three runs but was the victim of some poor support.

ASHVILLE came from behind to tie the score at 10 all in the top of the sixth. Jeffersonville in their half of the sixth scored eight runs to go ahead 18 to 10. The Reds picked up two runs in the seventh and two runs in the eighth.

Going to bat into the top half of the ninth inning needing four runs to get back in the ball game the Red's bats went to work. Tracy lead off with a double. C. Gulick fouled out to first base. Ankrum singled scoring Tracy. Ankrum stole second base. Noon doubled scoring Ankrum. J. Gregg was out pitcher to first. Harold Gulick singled scoring Noon. Harold Gulick stole second. Harper was safe on an error. Gulick given to third. Sawyer was given a free pass to first base to pitch to Russ Gregg. Harold Gulick stole home while Gregg was batting struck out. The Reds half of the 10th inning. Tracy singled to center and stole second. Carl Gulick popped to first base. Ankrum got an infield single Tracy going to third. Noon singled scoring Tracy and sending Ankrum to third. J. Gregg and Ankrum worked a squeeze play Ankrum scoring and Noon going to third. Harold Gulick was safe on an error. Noon scoring the final run of the game.

FEATURE of the game was Russ Gregg's relief pitching. This was his first chance on the hill this year and after settling down proved that he is still one of the top pitchers in the league.

Robert Tracy's big bat played an important part in this game getting one double and three singles in six times at bat. Ankrum got two doubles and two singles in seven times at bat. Wally Noon is still hitting .500 getting three for six.

Next Sunday the Reds will be the guests of Chillicothe. This promises to be the best game of the league. Chillicothe, the victim of Lancaster on the opening day, will be out to try and dump the Reds out of first place. The Reds will be in there doing their best and Chillicothe may have a hard time winning Sunday.

IN OTHER games Sunday Chillicothe won 6-3 from Grove City; Lancaster blanked Greenfield 3-0 and Jamestown and Washington C. H. were rained out.

"Chuck" Brown, big Chillicothe right-hander, held Grove City to six scattered hits and scored his second victory of the season. Mead got four runs in the first innings, but after that Graves, Grove City hurtled, settled down and pitched scoreless ball with the exception of the fifth when Mead scored two runs on two hits and an error.

A crowd of 3,000 people watched Lancaster and Greenfield play a game in which there was only one error, by Lancaster, and a total of 10 hits. Daubemire fanned 12 and allowed four hits to win his second game.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT

Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress

Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste food, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food. Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness. To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients. Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better. Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalis to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

WAYSIDE HOSPITALITY

WITH AMERICA on the go again, and vacationists about to take to the open road, tourist homes in greater numbers than ever before are springing up along the highways. These are private homes, with a few bedrooms opened to the public. The industry is viewed as a development of the automobile age. Yet it is as old as the United States itself.

When new roads were blazed through the wilderness, even before they were passable, pioneers put up log cabins along the route and took in the traveler who hitched his weary horse in the dooryard. After a bit the enterprising among such householders added a room or two as lean-to, made the table a little bigger, and his hard-working wife made a business of taking in strangers. They might be wagoners and stage drivers, gangs of Irish road builders or other settlers moving westward. These combination tavern-homes were the first tourist houses even though they had no electrically-illuminated signs out in front to announce inner spring mattresses or running hot water.

Like those old-time stop-overs, modern tourist "rests" dispense a personal hospitality that the commercial hotel does not achieve. America has always liked this informal roadside lodging. But tourist homes do need some sort of licensing or authoritative check-over to make sure that standards are upheld as they should be.

MOVING OUTDOORS

GRANDMA DID her best with sunbonnet and parasol to keep the sun from freckling or burning her lily-white skin. Her granddaughter tries just as hard to get the sun on her skin, to make it as brown as an Indian's. Architectural styles have changed correspondingly during these same years. People used to build big solid houses with little windows in them, and stayed inside them. Now houses are small, windows as big as possible. Occupants, whenever the weather permits, live outdoors.

This vogue of living-in-the-sun to a large extent started in California where so many new ideas begin. There houses are built so that they merge into the garden. With sliding non-reflecting glass panels for walls it is hard to tell where the indoors ends and the outdoors begins. Some Californians have placed fireplaces in porch walls so they can be warmed by the fire on cool nights as they sit in the garden. They have all sorts of contraptions like barbecues on wheels for outdoor eating.

People in other states are finding that their climates, too, will permit a lot of garden living. Modern insecticides that practically eliminate flies and mosquitoes have increased the zest for this pleasant tendency.

Qualified women voters outnumber men by 1,171,000, says Dr. Ruth Merrill, dean of women at the University of Rochester yet 25 per cent less women were elected to office last November than held office a year previously. Women should surely do as well in most offices as the men who fill them now.

Judging from the accident records, a considerable percentage of drivers, waiting at railroad crossings, do not seem to believe that when a train has passed on one track, another can possibly be coming in the other direction.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 19—In the senate lobby, the legislators laugh and say Mr. Truman could not have known what was in the portal-to-portal backpay ban, because no one does except Missouri's Republican Senator Donnell who wrote it and maybe a Philadelphia lawyer who helped him. Donnell chased commas and semicolons all over congress for six weeks or more before he succeeded in arranging them in the order he wanted, but even so he could not explain the ifs, ands, buts and howevers to the senate which actually passed the bill without understanding it.

Indeed, Mr. Truman appeared just as confused as the senate about what effect the legislation will have on the wage hour law and took his full ten days before signing the measure. The senators assume the message was written for him by the wage-hour administration. It took a broad view of the matter assuming the law would not upset its work or alter its standards.

As a matter of fact, the message merely gathered together the arguments used against the bill in the senate from the labor union side, and assumed officially these possibilities would not come to pass. It bore such a distinctly union flavor, the political trade interpreted it as a prelude to the threatened veto of the omnibus union reform bill. The unions were against this ban of portal-to-portal backpay suits, of course, but not energetically, and the president, by taking their arguments and advocating a higher minimum wage law, padded the cudgel. Senator Taft was personally somewhat surprised that Mr. Truman was not tougher about some aspects.

However, there was nothing the White House could do but sign the bill. The unions actually had filed suits for $6 billions of back pay for time spent in years past walking to machines and back again, or opening windows or putting on uniforms to go to work inside the company gate. To pay this sum out of current earnings would have required a tremendous price increase. Furthermore, the government would have lost hundreds of millions of dollars in tax refunds if industry had to furnish this back pay. So about 80 per cent of public opinion demanded the legislation.

Now was there anything new in Mr. Truman's advocacy of a 65 cent minimum wage law, instead of 40 cents? He was for this last year, and it passed the senate, failing in the house. Of course the current pay for the cheapest labor in most sections is now 65 cents or above, but enactment of federal legislation would prevent reduction if business goes sour. The house will probably not do anything about this at this session either.

Thus the portal-to-portal message was somewhat a political routine, and if Donnell has his commas and semicolons in the right places, will not be of much consequence.

More seriously the AFL is buying two-thirds page ads in local papers headed: "Industry - wide bargaining or chaos?" This is for effect on the conferees working on the union reform bill, particularly to keep them from accepting the house ban on industry-wide bargaining. The ad is written as an appeal to the public for support against the ban, which the ad says was directed by the selfish interests of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Some Republicans wish to water down the reform legislation for strategic political purposes, but the public interest of the industry-bargaining ban has solid grounds regardless of what NAM or the unions may or may not think. The anti-trust laws specifically prevent industry from dealing on a national basis as respects prices particularly, or in fact in any combination which might be considered restraint of trade. In simple public justice there is no reason why the unions should be freed from the anti-trust laws, and permitted to fix prices on a national industry-wide basis by their wage demands and constantly increasing demands for working privileges which increase costs to the consumer. Union combinations also fix prices and act in restraint of trade.

Hints on Etiquette

To know when to leave is as important as to know what to say, whether it be a social call or a business interview. Don't talk too much and don't stay when the call or interview is over. Go.

Today's Horoscope

You are a nervous person, energetic and somewhat excitable. You play with childlike abandon and seek gaiety. You are kind, considerate, and affectionate in your love. Also you are witty and full of fun. The day's vibrations are good, provided you know when to stop. You may overdo matters. Beware of litigation, disputation and extravagance in your next year. Watch expenses closely. Love and marriage are best deferred, (also speculation). The child who is born on this date will be very obstinate, proud, self-centered, quick-tempered, hasty and self-opinionated, extravagant, and likely to have financial losses and disappointments in love or marriage.

DIET AND HEALTH

What Causes Weight Gains

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOSE of us who weigh more than we should seldom like to admit that our stoutness is due to overeating. We search around for reasons and causes elsewhere, some believing it is only "natural" for them to be fat while others think they may have glandular trouble. And it is true that certain gland disorders do lead to a gain in weight. Nevertheless such cases are few and far between. Most doctors, among them Dr. Edwin G. Langrock of New York, state that the only reason for obesity in the vast majority of cases is the eating of more food than is required. In any case, even where overweight is due to glandular disturbances, the treatment consists basically in eating less.

Height and Weight

Many height and weight tables have been formulated which show what the average person between 25 and 35 years of age should weigh. According to Dr. Langrock, weights above these levels are detrimental to health and lead to a shortened life span. No additional weight should be gained after 30 years of age.

In planning the diet so as to bring about a loss of weight or maintain the weight at the normal level, steps must be taken to be sure that enough of the various food parts especially protein are supplied for body growth.

Protein is furnished by such foods as meat, milk, eggs, cheese and whole-grain cereals. There should also be enough protein for the adult to maintain and repair the body tissues. In addition, vitamins and minerals should be supplied and enough starches and sugars to supply energy and prevent acidosis or a lessening of the amount of alkali in the blood and tissues.

Losing Weight

In order to lose weight, the number of calories or heat value of the diet must be less than what an individual uses up in his daily activity. Thus a 1200 or 1500 calorie diet is often used. In planning the diet the physician will first determine the number of calories the patient needs. Then he will select foods which furnish vitamins, minerals and proteins and prescribe them in a quantity which will furnish the necessary number of calories. In some instances vitamin and mineral supplements may be utilized to make sure that a deficiency does not occur.

The overweight person can best reduce under the direction of the physician. I have outlined some suggested diets and instructions which may be helpful in following the physician's advice, and I shall be glad to send this information to those who write in enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, with six cents in stamps. Name will not be used.

TWO WAYS TO FOIL IT

THERE ARE two standard ways to obstruct a double squeeze, or at least try to. You may not be able to use either of them in some situations. In others, one is possible to attempt and the other not. The first is an endeavor to break communications between the declarer's two holdings through an early lead of his entry suit. The second is a matter of discarding, one defender retains his defense against the unestablished card or cards in the entry suit, and the other keeps the cards which top the single unestablished cards in two other suits.

Two declarers made the identical try for a double squeeze on this deal in a duplicate, each West having led the heart Q. Able to count only 12 tricks, they built a nice format for the play. Two hearts, four spades, the diamond K, the club A and the club K left four tricks to go.

South retained his spade 9-7, diamond 10 and club 10, with the heart 9, diamond A-7 and club 8 in the dummy. To this stage at each table West clung to his heart J, diamond Q-8 and club Q while East retained the diamond J-9 and club J-6.

When South then led his next-to-last spade, West went wrong at one table. He discarded the club Q in order to protect the red suits, dummy shedding the club 8 and East of course tossing off his club 6. Then South's final spade produced the double squeeze. West, obliged to hold his heart J as protection against dummy's 9, discarded his diamond 8, whereupon declarer tossed off the dummy's heart. Now East was squeezed; if he threw off the club J, the 10 and the diamond A would get the last two tricks, so he discarded his diamond 9. Then the diamond A and 7 gave South the last two tricks.

At the other table, on the next to last spade, West discarded the diamond 8 and kept protection against the heart and club. East therefore was able to guard the diamonds, so the double squeeze was broken up and declarer had to be set one.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

BILL HAD not come home. Diane faced the empty apartment with an acute disappointment. She wanted to throw herself at Bill.

"Bill, Bill, what do you think? Maybe, maybe we're on the way to propagate our kind."

But you wouldn't say it flippantly, she reminded herself in the bedroom, beginning to undress. And you wouldn't say it until you were sure of it. Until a doctor told you. It would be Doctor Everts. The girls she knew who'd had babies had gone to him. They'd told—she held out a stocking to frown at it, remembering that what they had told was that it was simply loathsome, sitting and waiting in Doctor Everts' office with a dozen others who looked the way you hoped to heaven you didn't look!

She went swiftly to the long mirror set in the closet door to stare with a new alarm at her half-stripped body, pressed her hands against it to feel its familiar slenderness.

In bed she remembered that some women died at such times. You often read in the paper about the long mortality of women in childbirth. Her own mother—She threw out her arm and clutched Bill's pillow on the next bed.

She was asleep when Bill came in. She did not see him until morning when he gently shook her awake. "It's late, Di. I'll start the coffee while you shower."

His eyes looked tired, his mouth too set. That damaging evidence of Staples—Diane tightened her arm around his neck. She longed to say: "It doesn't matter, darling. You won't think it matters when I tell you!"

She waited only until Bill had closed the door behind him to go to the telephone. Her finger shook so that she had to dial twice to get her number. Her voice shook a little. "Doctor Everts' office? I'd like to make an appointment to see him. Not before two o'clock? I am Mrs. William Arden, Junior—No, I've never been in before."

She sat for a moment on the edge of the bed, one hand still on the telephone, the other limp and open at her side while the wonder of it beat through her. A child of Bill's flesh and of hers, of the intimacy of their love. To love, together, to think about!

Lois called her in the middle of the morning. "Coming out to the club today, Di? We might play some golf."

Diane recognized a slight persuasiveness in her tone which betrayed she was concerned over Vicky's tactlessness of the day before. But she only smiled. Yesterday's anger and dissatisfactions were swept away.

"Can't," she answered. "I'm important things to do." Lois was encouraged to go on. "Has anyone told you what's happened? That's the uncle died yesterday. The one in California. His father called him that he's to fly out to the coast to represent the family. He doesn't know when he'll be back."

"Oh, a week won't make any difference—"

"Listen, Di, Danny and I were thinking last night—we were at Giuseppe's last night—that it'd be fun to go sort of risque to that showboat party. Like fan dancers—"

The merry-go-round. But Diane could laugh. She went back to the kitchen and to the task of cleaning the kitchen shelves which had been interrupted by Lois' call. Each time the clock chimed she paused in her task to count it, to hear her heart beat louder than the chime.

There were three other young women in Doctor Everts' office when she went in. They greeted her coming with a smile, looked her over, frankly curious, and Diane picked up a magazine quickly and pretended interest in the first page to which she opened it. This was what Joan Dexter had meant when she said it was sisters-under-the-skin, here. But she didn't intend to be drawn into any familiarity; hers was her own secret. She read one paragraph, another, with desperate intentness.

But in spite of it, she heard bits of their talk. "Say, I couldn't lift my head for two months, I was so sick to my stomach! Thank Heaven that's over." A comparison of hospitals. The Sheldon had telephone phones by the bed. "You don't have to wait 'til a nurse gets around to thinking she has time to bring one in." The General let you have people in to see you any time and the food was wonderful!

Then one girl said, with a not too happy laugh: "This is my third. And my last, or I'll know why!" Diane's fingers tightened on her magazine, as she suddenly remembered that she and Bill, talking about it before their marriage, had agreed they wanted three children. And then Bill had said in his firm way: "But not even one, darling, until we've gotten ahead! When we can have a house and keep a servant."

Dismay struck in on her. Bill certainly wouldn't think he'd gotten far enough ahead, now! He'd be terribly disturbed, perhaps, by all it would cost. There'd be the hospital expense and a nurse—

"Mrs. Arden," signaled a uniformed woman from the door. Diane got to her feet, her knees shaking. "Maybe he'll say it isn't so," she prayed in her dismay.

But Doctor Everts, tall and gray-haired and benign, said that, considering everything she told him, there was no doubt of it. He patted her shoulder. "You mustn't feel any alarm, my dear. You appear to be in exceptionally splendid health. Go on doing all the things you have been doing. Keep happy."

When, smilingly, he closed the record book in which he had jotted down her answers to his questions, Diane felt as though he were shutting her within its leather covers. "Five hundred dollars for the delivery alone," Joan Dexter had said, proudly, as if it put added value on her baby.

She drove back to the Chatham Arms but, in front of it, she found herself reluctant to go in. She started her car again, drove on swiftly through the city streets, fighting to beat this new confusion in her. It was rotten to think about the money a baby cost! Bill must let her ask her father for it. "Keep happy." The old dodo had said it as though it were important. She'd tell Bill he'd said it. And worrying about money wasn't a happy state of mind. When she reached the city line where the street narrowed to a two-lane macadam road, she drove faster, tore off her hat to feel the wind whipping her hair. Keep happy, sang the spinning wheels. She would, she would!

Gradually an unfamiliarity in the countryside roused her to wondering where she was. The road was climbing into low hills, curving among them. There were stretches of pleasant shade where great trees stood close to it, a creek ran along beside it, through a shallow ravine. She slowed her speed, enjoying a little sense of adventure. When she heard some boyish shouting she pulled to the side of the road, stopped, got out of the car and went to the edge of the ravine to look down into it.

In a pool of deeper water some boys were swimming. A quite little one, naked, stood at the edge of the pool, dirty toes gripping the shale, skinny arms stretched over his head, his ribs pushing outward under the great breath with which he was shouting: "Lookie, fellars, look-a-me!" His tousled hair was the color of wheat in the rain.

Smiling, Diane tiptoed back to the car. Not for worlds would she let any unexpected sound spoil that little boy's dive. When he was trying so hard to be brave!

She kept seeing him as she drove slowly on. He was suddenly, preciously, a little boy she knew, a little boy she buttoned up day after day, and bathed and hugged and watched go off to play.

The road dipped down into a wider valley. Graceful willows and beeches, white-leaved in the sun, followed the course of the creek across it. On the other side of it, on higher ground, its barns against the opposite hillside, stood a house. Glancing at it, Diane thought, excitedly: "That's where the little boy lives!"

Then she saw a "For Sale" sign nailed to a post that marked the long lane which led to the house. She stared at it, inclined to believe that some magic had just pinned it there. She looked from it on to the house. An old house, needing both painting and propping, old sheds and barns, but she saw it the house she had dreamed of, that day with Page at the side of the pool.

She pulled the car half into the shallow ditch, sprang out of it, and started up the grass-grown lane. "A car can make this," she observed, aloud. She looked at her wrist watch. It had taken her only a half-hour to get out here. Bill wouldn't mind that. Not when it brought him here!

They'd have a garden, vegetables as well as flowers. She laughed in a delighted astonishment at herself, who never had given a thought to gardens of any sort, who never had spent one night in a country place like this.

NAVY V-6 DANCE AT LEGION HOME WELL-ATTENDED

Rain storm of Saturday evening did not hamper a capacity crowd from attending the special Navy V-6 dance in the American Legion home on East Main street.

The dance was planned in observance of the national "Operation Naval Reserve" scheduled by the United States Navy department from May 18 through May 25. John Heiskell is chairman of a committee for the "O N R" in Circleville. R. B. Eddy, chief of Navy recruiting station, and other Navy personnel from Chillicothe were present for the evening's entertainment. Many veterans and their ladies and members of the Legion attended the social affair, also a number of out of town guests from Kingston and Chillicothe.

Eddie Mann and his trio from Columbus furnished dance music and novel entertainment between the hours of 9 and 12. The well known musicians provided unusual arrangements of current popular songs and many novel dance tunes. For the Navy dance the home was appropriately and artistically decorated in designs and picture displays of Navy ships and equipment.

TOLEDO DRIVES TOWARD LEAD IN ASSOCIATION

By International News Service
A new challenger appeared today to plague the American Association's pace-setting Kansas City Blues.

The Toledo Mud Hens still were two games behind the Blues, but their feat of winning a doubleheader yesterday carried them past both Louisville and Columbus into second place.

While the Hens slugged out 13-7 and 7-3 victories over Milwaukee, both the Colonels and the Red Birds were splitting twin bills.

Columbus edged Kansas City, 3 to 2, in a ten-inning nightcap after the league leaders had taken the opener, 6 to 4.

Louisville won its first game from St. Paul, 7 to 2, but dropped the second, 7 to 6, in two added stanzas.

Extra inning games were definitely in style yesterday. The Mud Hens' second victory also was achieved in an overtime contest.

Infielder Dick Kimble was the hero of that victory when he belted a grand slam homer in the extra eighth inning of a scheduled seven-round game.

Minneapolis unlimbered a homerun barrage to take two games from Indianapolis, 7 to 5 and 2 to 0. Babe Barna, Johnny McCarthy, Wes Westrum and Bobby Rhawn all belted round-trippers in the first game.

In the second, McCarthy's first inning homer with one on gave Ken Jungels his margin of victory. Jungels scattered seven hits in shutting out the Indians.

Only one Association game was scheduled today. St. Paul playing a night contest at Minneapolis.

INTERMEDIATE BOYS' CLUB NINE NAMED BY AMEY

At the regular meeting of the Circleville Boys' Club Saturday in Ted Lewis Park, Supervisor Ed Amey named the following to the Intermediate League team (boys 13 to 15 years of age):

infielders: Tommy Phillips, Bob Brown, Cecil Sowers, Freddie Davis; outfielders: Jack Pontious, Gerald Thomas, Garry Grown, Gene Clifton; catcher: Bill Gillis; pitchers: "Buck" Teets and Paul Hill.

A Junior League team will be selected at a later date. The Circleville Boys' Club is sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and offers instruction in various sports to school-age boys.

An all-day hike is planned for club members next Saturday.

SEVEN CARS QUALIFIED FOR INDIANAPOLIS RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 19—Seven cars were qualified today for the 31st 500-mile Memorial Day classic at Indianapolis speedway. Russell Snowberger, a Detroit blacksmith, became the seventh driver to beat the clocks yesterday when he averaged 121.351 miles an hour over the 10-mile route. He drove the same 8-cylinder Maseratti qualified by Mauri Rose in the 1941 race.

CHICAGO, May 19—Fears that dissatisfied drivers would stage a Memorial Day race of their own to rival the annual 500-mile classic at Indianapolis were dispelled today with the announcement that the drivers have decided to enter a sanctioned race at Milwaukee June 8.

LOMBARDI JOINS GIANTS HOMER HITTING DRIVE

Braves Keep First Place By Splitting With Reds; Feller Gets Win

NEW YORK, May 19 — The name of still another long hitter was added today to the New York Giants' murderers' row, already the most devastating collection of fence busters in the National League.

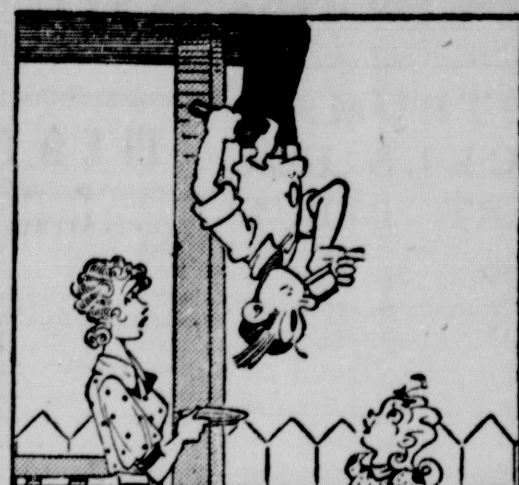

Now joining the frightening array of power presented by the veterans Johnny Mize, Walker Cooper and Willy Marshall and the youngsters Bobby Thomson and Bill Rigney is Ernie Lombardi, veteran catcher.

SCHNOZZOLA got into the fray yesterday when he was most needed, right after the red-hot Giants had dropped the first game of a twin bill to Pittsburgh, 7 to 6. He whacked two three-run homers in the seven-inning nightcap, enabling the Giants to win 11 to 6 and remain only half a game behind Boston.

Frank Gustine of the Cubs won the opener single-handed with a homer and a double.

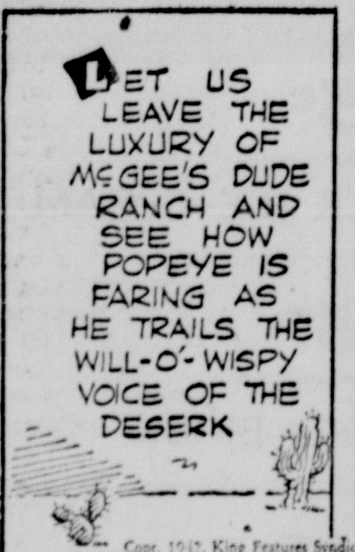

The Braves held on to first place by downing Cincinnati 3 to 1 after Ewell Blackwell of the Reds had enhanced his reputation as the circuit's best pitcher by winning a 2 to 1 mound duel from big Mort Cooper in the opener.</
